It's no secret that artists and bands from the U.S. rock scene are frequently frustrated with the financial system. Deadheads don't know what other people are talking about, they say, when they're complaining that the ticket prices are too high. But Jonny shows that they have other reasons for playing and recording, besides financial ones. Many bands don't perform live anymore because they don't make enough money on the road to pay for food and hotels. They play smaller and smaller clubs. And they're not popular enough to get rich off of touring and recordings. 82157476af
